

Ali Dee: This kid was on some United Colours of Benetton shit with his first group The Next School, then dropped a solo album we never heard

Apathy: This kid is kinda nuts. Dope lyrics.

A to the D (The Renegade Jew): We laughed so hard at his ads in the Source. We never heard this guy, but we think he's the best white rapper ever.

Bas Blasta: Gruffy voice, that track with the Beatnuts was cool. He was signed to Loud, where is he now?

Beastie Boys: What can you say? These guys are huge stars and all of their albums have been incredible.

Birdapres: Vancouver's burly champion, member of next-school crew the Golden Section. Bird's got skills.

Blood of Abraham: Jesus was a black jew. Blood of Abraham were two white jews.

Brian (Austin) Green: That stupid rich kid from 90210. We don't know why the Pharcyde got involved with this idiot.

Bud Bundy: Supposedly this kid released a record under the name D-Dub.

Cage: He was in some crew called Mudbones, and is down with Pete Nice and Bobbito. His 12" on Fondle 'Em was super-dope.

Chilly Tee: His dad owns Nike. The Bomb Squad produced his beats. We never took him seriously.

Don Scavone: Some kid out of New York on Makin' Records.

Downtown Science: These guys had good beats.

E.C. Illa: Some kid from Chicago, we've heard good and bad things about him.

El-P (Company Flow): El-P is incredible on the boards and the mic. Who cares that he's white? Not us.

Eminem: M&M's been blowing up with mad punchline-filled freestyles all over the place, and has now signed to Dr. Dre's Aftermath Entertainment. He's finnah blow up.

Everlast: From his Syndicate days to House of Pain, back to the solo shit...we've had sort of a love/hate relationship with this guy's music. But he's been down with Divine, so he gets love.

Eyeekon (Jedi Mind Tricks): A little too pover-therep sometimes, but nonetheless some dope lyrics, and the skills are there.

Evidence (Dilated Peoples): We think this kid's got dope beats and a dope flow. You should too.

Frankenstein: Often called Canada's DJ Premier, this Italian kid has dope beats.

Goats, The: These guys were big in the Cypress Hill/House of Pain crowd, but we thought they kind of sucked.

Hip Club Groove: These kids blew up out of Halifax a few years back, releasing two dope albums, then disappearing.

Icy Blu: This was some chick rapper we know nothing about.

Insane Clown Posse: With all that make-up on, we're not sure, but we think they're white. We also think they suck.

Jesse Jaymes: This is some dude rapper we know nothing about.

Kid Hood: We didn't know this kid was white. He got props on that Scenario remix, it's too bad we didn't get to hear more from this kid.

Kid Rock: This is that young kid from Detroit who made a song about eating girls out. We never heard it, but we like this kid.

Knuckleheadz: For some reason, Erick and Parrish put these guys down with the Hit Squad. We think they're the secret reason why EPMD broke up.

Lordz of Brklyn: The Italian version of House of Pain, we heard they're dope graf artists though.

LMNO: Down with Visionaries. He's improved since E=MC5.

Mad Flava: House of Pain II, from Texas.

Marky Mark: Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha Ha. He was cool as Dirk Diggler though.

Millkbone: My man Bird in Vancouver met this kid in a Vancouver radio station or something. Who really cares?

Necro: Some insane guy we keep hearing about, but we haven't heard him yet.

Snow: Informer, is he? He's probably the first white rapper in Canada's first in what will be a long line of white rasta rappers.

Stinkin' Rich: Stinkin' Rich is one of Canada's best emcees. He's a funny dude with dope beats and a BMX bike.

Swollen Members: From Vancouver, Swollen Members are on a straight blow-up mission, doing tracks with Acey, Del, Tony da Skitzo, and others. Skills abound.

Tairie B: When I was younger, I liked that pMurder She Wrote song for a couple days. She used to bone Everlast too. Now she's in a rock band.

3rd Bass: Yeah, sometimes they tried a little too hard, but overall these guys were dope, and released two of the best hip-hop albums ever.

Tony D: He made beats for Poor Righteous Teachers, and had his own album called Harvie Wallbanger. I saw it recently at a used record store, but didn't buy it. When I came back a week later it was gone.

Non-Phixion: These guys are making moves. We haven't heard much of their stuff. What can we say?

Orion (Shades of Culture): Shades of Culture are dope. R.A. the Rugged Man: Crustified Dibbs was a joke. We don't like R.A.'s solo stuff either.

Remedy: The White Wu-Banger.

Ryu (Styles of Beyond): This kid is like a young white version of early Rakim. He's sick and we love his rhymes. Go buy the Styles of Beyond album now.

Seven L & Esoteric: We know you didn't sleep on these dudes. If you did, then you're a dummy-dumb-dumb.

Sham & The Professor: Do you remember these cats? We don't.

Six-Too: From Canada's East Coast, Six-Too rocks as part of the Sebutones and with his solo ish.

Vanilla Ice: One of the top 5 white emcees ever. Actually one of the top 5 emcees ever. (We're joking, we really hate him and we don't know why.)

Vandal: A dope Canadian emcee down with Cryptik Souls Crew. He's got skills.

Whitey Don: Another white Canadian rasta rapper, he signed to Jive, did tracks with KRS-One, Phife, and Chip-Fu. We still see him all the time riding his bike around Toronto, in ridiculous mesh baseball hats.

Whoolaginz: The biggest joke of all time. The straw that broke the Soul Assassin's remaining respect's back.

Young Black Teenagers: The controversy of their name caused heads to sleep on their dope first album, and no one cared about their second wack album. Skribble is a big-time New York DJ now. We still like Kamron and we heard Tommy Never's a model now.
